

CENTER FOR CHINESE STUDIES
1995 University Avenue, Suite 520 J
Berkeley, CA 94704-2318
Telephone: (510) 643-6321
Email: ccs@berkeley.edu
Web: <http://ieas.berkeley.edu/ccs/>

Call for Proposals for the 2024 Berkeley-Stanford Graduate Student Conference in Modern Chinese Humanities

Currently enrolled graduate students are invited to submit paper proposals for the Berkeley-Stanford Graduate Student Conference in Modern Chinese Humanities, to be held April 19-20, 2024 at UC Berkeley. Conference registration is free. Presenters will be provided with shared lodging, Friday dinner, and Saturday lunch. There is limited partial funding assistance for those who cannot find their own funding.

Proposals/bios due: Friday November 10, 2023, 11:59 pm PT

Application Instructions:

To apply, please submit your abstract (up to 250 words) and a short bio (up to 100 words, including current institutional affiliation), and include the following information in the application: Author Name, Author Bio, Paper Title, Subtitle (optional), Keywords, and Abstract. Please follow the link to apply:

<https://app.smartsheet.com/b/form/4e5859a9ef444a128734d6f42bf4238d>

The annual Berkeley-Stanford Graduate Student Conference in Modern Chinese Humanities brings together current graduate students from across the U.S. and around the world to present innovative research on any aspect of modern Chinese cultural production in the humanistic disciplines. The conference provides a window into current research in Chinese studies, and serves as a platform for fostering interaction among budding scholars of geographically disparate institutions, facilitating their exchange of ideas and interests. The conference hopes to encourage interdisciplinary scholarship within and between literary and cultural studies, cultural history, art history, film and media studies, musicology and sound studies, as well as the interpretative social sciences. For a list of past presenters, please see the archived conference schedules.

The 2024 keynote speaker is Jinying Li, Modern Culture and Media, Brown University, and the conference alumni speaker is Jianqing Chen, Film and Media Studies, Washington University in St. Louis.

Notification of acceptance: Early January 2024

Final paper submission deadline (if accepted): Friday March 29, 2024, 11:59 pm PT

Contact Information:

UC Berkeley Center for Chinese Studies, ccs@berkeley.edu